1 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Deceptive Title By Mitchell E. Davis This is fictional book masquerading as non fiction. There are no inspiring, educational, or insightful case histories. The book is pure tongue in cheek comedy-satire. For instance, his response to a hypochondriac is to suggest stopping exercise and to eat a lot of junk food to encourage a heart attack and thus avoid a worse fate such as Alzheimer's disease or other slowly progressive diseases. The patient is gleeful when he later reports he has his cholesterol up to 500. The doctor tells another patient their skin cancer is due to their not appreciating and loving such a sensitive organ. Some may find this book clever and amusing, but I found it to be full of dumb humor. I found his first book (Bag Balm and Duct Tape) to be worthwhile reading, but this book was a big letdown. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By Ann C. funny 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. funny man By M. Baker He was my husband's M.D. last year and is a great guy and I love all of his books. So clever.

A unique look at the doctor-patient relationship from the doctor's point of view.
