Actually it was a compilation of articles written by Patrick Dolrenson regarding issues of extreme importance to America. Sometimes someone needs to break down the political rhetoric into common sense language that ordinary people can understand. Mr Dorinson hits the nail right on the head. With humor and wit, Patrick lays out the problems and provides workable solutions. The solutions hark back to the Cowboy way of life when a solution better work or lives and lively hood would be at stake.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Truth with humorBy JimThe Cowboy Libertarian cuts right to the heart of the matter in describing our current problems, what we should be doing, and what we should not do - with sufficient cowboy humor thrown in.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Great BookBy Sean W. CalderCommon sense to approach to what troubles are political atmosphere. The muted voices of Americans are well represented in this book.

It's Nut Cuttin' Time is an insightful and humorous look at the American political and cultural landscape over the last six years. It takes aim at the preening politicians of both parties and also takes a swing at our self-indulgent celebrity-obsessed pop culture. It's Nut Cuttin' Time is written by someone who just doesn't comment on politics from the bleachers like today's TV pundits, but who was actually fighting in the arena for over 25 years. Patrick Dorinson is a modern day Will Rogers with sharp elbows who's had an insider's view of the political system having been on both sides of the aisle and as he likes to say, "in the aisle itself". Patrick's cowboy wisdom will make you laugh, make you cry, and most of all, it will make you think. If you've had enough of the bloviating blowhards who won't admit how America got into this mess, or explain how we'll get out of it, this return to simple common sense is a must read."

About the AuthorPatrick Dorinson is a political communications strategist, radio talk show host and commentator who unlike many so-called pundits, has actually been in the arena and has the battle scars to prove it. He has been on both sides of the aisle and in the aisle itself, having worked over the last 25 year for Republicans and Democrats in both politics and government. He likes to say that "wisdom comes from experience, most of it bad" and like others before him his political and life philosophy has evolved over the years. Through it all he has come to consider himself a Libertarian Conservative who believes in limited government in all things and the basic right of all Americans to live their lives as they see fit as long as they abide by the laws of the land. Or put another way, government should keep their hands off the public's wallet and their nose out of folk's private lives. Patrick Dorinson is a columnist for the FOX News.com Opinion on the FOX News website and regular contributor to "The Arena" on POLITICO the #1 political website in the nation. He is the resident political analyst for Clear Channel's Newstalk 1530 KFBK radio in Sacramento, California. He also appears regularly as a commentator on local television. Mr. Dorinson has appeared on Sean Hannity's Great American Panel on the FOX News Channel and on Cavuto on the FOX Business Channel as well as on FOX News.com webcasts He is host of weekly radio talk show, The Cowboy Libertarian with Patrick Dorinson. It airs Saturdays from 5 to 6PM Pacific on Newstalk 1530 KFBK . Dorinson lives on a 15 acre ranch in Nevada City, California, is an avid student of the West and a pretty fair horseman. And he knows that when learning how to ride, the ground is the best teacher, having the broken bones to prove it. He enjoys working and riding alongside his friends in the ranching and cattle business whenever he gets the opportunity. And if he had his druthers and could find an outfit to hire him he would make his living on the back of a horse.
