LLyn De Danaan : Koans for the Inner Dog: A Guide to Canine Enlightenment before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Koans for the Inner Dog: A Guide to Canine Enlightenment:

Koans for the Inner Dog is for the canine what Zen and the Art of Archery was for humans. The book succeeds in demystifying obscure mystical texts so that any furry seeker can become enlightened...and drag its human companion along with it. Heeling has never been made easier. This book is full of puns and pleasures. Essential exercises are suggested for every good and would-be-good dog.

"...adheres to the literary equivalent of a straight face...will induce several chuckles--and maybe even a howl..." -- The Bookmonger, Barbara McMichael. Daily Olympian, December 7, 2003
"A great Christmas stocking stuffer for the spaniel and spaniel lover" Jean MacGregor -- Book , Sounder, Puget Sound English Springer Spaniel Association
From the Publisher
This is De Danaan's second published dog book. Koans is a sequel to Conversations with the Inner Dog, a series of short lessons that appeal to the best in the animal nature of us all. De Danaan is, in the new book, once again inspired by her Springer Spaniel, Cosmo.
About the Author
Lyn De Danaan is an anthropologist and emerita member of the faculty at The Evergreen State College in Western Washington. She is a former Unitarian lay chaplain. She has written professionally for more than thirty years. Most recently she was a contributor to Vashon Island Archaeology (UW Press, 2003). Her previous book, Conversations with the Inner Dog, was published by Hypatia-in-the-Woods Press in 2002. Her fiction has also appeared in Dog Nose News. When she is not consulting as an anthropologist, she is writing. She is already at work on the next book for canines and canine lovers, A Dog is not a Grasshopper: The Pup in us All.
