This'd up in a marriage by Jake I have been married to a Thai woman, who I met at the bank, as she was bank teller/customer service representative since 31 March 1998. I knew it wasn't my charming way but that I was a foreigner (or a farung). We dated for about a year, even though she was ready to marry in a couple of months. I have been happy with her, and her life is pretty good, as she is now the rich

Aunt, to her nieces back in Thailand as she spends money on when they need things bought. I have been very a better husband to her than my first marriage (I was a terrible husband and she was a terrible wife). I remember the time when she was mad and she said she loved her family more than she loved me. I remember the Ms. Pop talking about the primacy of her family back in Thailand. I didn't say anything, and she returned to her loving ways with me. The book is very insightful and really is true, and made me chuckle many times. 3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. a MUST book to have NOW!!! By James Fess I highly recommend buying this book if your dating or planning on marrying a Thai or Filipino woman, both are very close in their cultures. The author (a Thai) wrote the book for any man to easily understand what he must expect from his Thai or Filipino wife or girlfriend. The book is based off of the author's own experiences in her marriage. There are some humorous but meaningful stories that she and her husband have encountered throughout their marriage. This book will definitely help me in the future and will help ALL men realize that all women are the same, it is their cultures and values that are different and this book has the answers to achieve a happy and meaningful marriage or relationship.

American men are beguiled in their thousands by the enchanting women of Thailand. But many make poor choices when it comes to marrying women whose needs, habits and expectations are very different from their own, and a clash of cultures can ruin a romance. Who better to advise than a Thai woman herself? No topic is taboo as Pop Soisangwan offers insider knowledge on how to secure a successful match. Illustrated with humorous cartoons.
